

ing comet. Some prayed and all watched. Nobody carried salt, but a few carried bottles in which to seal up the atmosphere for future analysis. What these analyses will show cannot be foretold, but there were no bodily indications of cyanogen gas. Word received from the West late today that violent disturbances had been observed on the face of the sun added greatly to the curiosity of the crowd, who reasoned that if the sun were susceptible, that was cause to believe the earth might be.

Dr. Harold Jacoby Rutherford, professor of astronomy at Columbia University, said to-night that the sun spots reported to-day from various observatories in the West might be due to the passage of the comet across the face of the sun or they might be merely fortuitous.

"The sun spot observed by Father Brennan," he said, "is unusually large, but not the largest recorded, if my memory serves me right. It would be impossible to say that the proximity of the comet to the sun is what we call a sun spot. On the other hand, such spots have appeared in the past when they could not possibly be attributed to a comet, and there you are."

See Spots on Sun.
San Jose, Cal., May 18.—Professor J. S. Ricard, of Santa Clara College meteorological observatory, informs the Associated Press that to-day he observed two very large spots on the sun, both intensely black.

The astronomer said that one spot was about twelve hours from the central meridian. East of it were three teen pores or small spots. These spots were entirely new, he said, as for three months almost nothing in the nature of spots had been observed.

See Thirty Spots.
St. Louis, Mo., May 18.—Solar eruptions were observed this afternoon by Father Martin S. Brennan, professor of astronomy at the Kendrick Seminary. He saw thirty distinct spots on the sun. One of them he estimated was 150,000 miles in diameter.

Three awful groups, is the way that Father Brennan described the spots.

"The recurrence of spots at this time is unusual, but there is nothing in it to cause uneasiness. It simply indicates internal activity. There is no possible connection between the spots and the comet. The comet is 80,000,000 miles away from the sun and could not possibly have any effect on it."

COMET GIVES US ONE MORE CHANCE
Decides at Last Moment Not to Destroy This Wonderful Earth.

Halley's comet swished its tail about the planet Terra last night, but there was nothing doing. In some sections mourners went about the streets, and the sound of the cymbal was no longer heard. Sinners prayed that their sins might be forgiven, and at that last day, and the righteous cheered themselves with the thought of good deeds done. Yet there never was any danger to be expected from contact with the comet's tail, nor was there any illumination of the earth's surface. People in Asia and in some of the South Sea islands may have seen the comet and may have seen a bright light in the sky, resulting from the tail, which measures, it is supposed, 4,000,000 miles in length. But there was no glare to be seen here, and thousands of watchers from the housetop watched in vain.

Locks Horns with Sun.
Halley's comet went down with the sun, with which it seems to have come into harmonious juxtaposition. It began crossing the face of the sun yesterday evening, but its faint glow could not be discerned, except, perhaps, by astronomers fortunately situated against the mere glare of old Sol. Professor Charles Winston, astronomical observer for Richmond College, retired at an early hour in order that he might arrive in time to see what could be seen, if anything were to be seen. But he reported no unusual phenomena, and no one saw anything unusual with the naked eye. The comet's tail is so attenuated that little was expected of it. Its particles are so widely separated and so microscopic that they could make no effect, and some doubt that the tail is anything but a wake of light. So, thinking Camille Flammarion, the renowned French astronomer, and so think others.

So, locking horns with the sun, as it were, the comet disappeared from the view of those on this side of this conference not to vote for his reelection. Three ballots were cast before his successor was elected, but on the third ballot F. S. Harker, of the Louisiana Conference, was elected.

J. E. Dickey, of the North Georgia Conference, was elected secretary of the board of education, on the second ballot. The first ballot cast for public health agents resulted in the election of D. M. Smith and A. J. Lamar, the present agents.

On motion of W. N. Ainsworth, Thursday evening was fixed as the time for hearing the address of Rev. L. Luccock, fraternal messenger of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

A resolution was adopted urging all delegates to remain until the close of the conference, in order that the business may be transacted carefully and satisfactorily. A recommendation was included that no member be excused, except for good reasons.

This afternoon the conference decided upon Monday next, at the close of the morning session, as the time for final adjournment.

The report of Collins Denny, who was fraternal messenger from this church to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the meeting of that body two years ago, was adopted.

Changes in Ritual.
The committee on revisions submitted a report relative to certain changes in the ritual. This report was ordered to be considered item by item, and will not be concluded until tomorrow, when action will be taken upon the report as a whole.

Bishops W. J. Young, F. M. Thomas and C. M. Bishop, and Messrs. M. L. Walton, R. S. Hyer and W. B. Stubbs were appointed as the commission from this church to the Federal Council of the Union of Methodist Churches.

Resolutions of thanks to the eminent jurists and other laymen who contributed the "Vanderbilt" committee were adopted by a rising vote at this afternoon's session.

The question of increased representation of laymen in the annual and general conferences was also considered this afternoon.

The report of the committee on revisions was adopted, recommending that one layman for every 1,500 members in a district and one for every two-thirds fraction of 1,500 be members of the annual conferences, provided no district has less than three laymen.

A substitute was offered recommending a still larger representation, but the report of the committee prevailed.

The committee on general conference entertainment has organized to act during the next four years, with T. B. King, of Memphis, chairman, and M. L. Thomas, of Chattanooga, secretary.

The question of the memorial request for equal rights with the laity for the women of the church is the order of the day for 10 o'clock to-morrow morning, but it is generally conceded that the report of the committee denying the request will be adopted without discussion of any length.

Ordination of New Bishops.
The ordination of the seven new bishops will take place in the Central Methodist Church to-morrow afternoon. Bishop Wilson will conduct this service, assisted by the other bishops.

The question of the church from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the Methodist Church, is yet to be decided, and may provoke considerable discussion, as in the West especially the new name is much debated. The order of the day has not been fixed for the decision of this question, but it will take place Friday or Saturday.

The laymen are greatly pleased at the measure adopted to-day by which they will hereafter have larger representation in the annual conference. This afternoon the Methodist women of Asheville tendered a reception at the Manor to the visiting women attending the conference.

Rev. S. Parke Gidman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., delivered a lecture to-night on William Ewart Gladstone at the auditorium.

when the ancient Hebrew capital was destroyed by the army of the Roman Emperor Titus. Josephus, the Jewish historian, described it as a sword hanging over Jerusalem. Doom of the city was expected.

Halley's comet saw the downfall of King Harold in the battle of Senlac, when the Saxon hosts were overcome by the army of the Norman Conqueror William. It has been closely associated with great events in English history. It saw the troubled times of 1835, it saw the founding of the first English colony in America, at Jamestown. It saw the elections in England of this year. It saw the death of King Edward, the Peacemaker. The superstitious regard this association as more than circumstantial, but the scientists will tell you that the association has always been merely coincidence.

Not Caesar's Ghost.
After the death of Caesar a comet appeared in the sky, and the faithful Romans believed that it was the ghost of the great emperor returned to win justice.

But there also have laid down their arms and have pillored their heads in their last sleep when some portent appeared in the sky. Comets come and go, and kings are born and die. There is no direct relation. Comets have been since before man first beheld the light of day, and as they are expected to exist until cosmic returns to chaos and everything is as it was.

Some believe that the Star of Bethlehem was a comet signifying the birth of the Saviour, but there is no record in history of this star, and it may have been a comet which disappeared as suddenly as it appeared.

Summe it to say, in this, that there is no danger to be expected from the present visitation, that the cyanogen gas, if there be any, will be in such slight quantity as not to affect the earth. When today's sun rises the comet will be too far away ever to affect the earth until it return again, and, as a seer said, the dog may return to his vomit and the worldly man to his sins. It will be goodbye comet for seventy-five years.

presided as toastmaster. His first introduction Governor Mann, who delighted the assemblage with his war-time stories and his references to the good feeling prevailing in the South for the North. He was given a warm reception from the first to the last.

President-Elect Clement followed in an address, urging co-operation and fraternal feeling among the members of the trade.

While the men and women present rose and cheered for many minutes, Philip Woelfel, of New Orleans, presented a handsome loving cup on the part of the association to its retiring President, E. H. Droop, of Washington, who made a most eloquent and touching response.

Edward Lyman Bill, editor of the Musical Trade Review, spoke on "Music—Retrospective and Prospective." He predicted a great future for the trade.

Peaceful be thy silent slumber. Peaceful in thy grave so low. Thou no more will join our number. Thou no more our sorrows know.

Yet again we hope to meet thee. When the day of life is fled, And in Heaven with joys to greet thee. Where no farewell tears are shed.

Fannie, darling, you have left us. Gone to Heaven with Christ to live. Soon, O soon, we too, will follow. With our darling there to live.

We knew how patient you were, darling. As we watched you night and day; Jesus came with palms of victory. And carried our darling away.

A darling one from us is gone. A voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in our home. Which never can be filled.
